of Chemistry, Netaji Nagar College for Women named, Dr. Chaitali Bhattacharjee and Charu Chand Hansda delivered a valuable popular lecture to the present audience.

The day's programme ended with a short 'Tree Plantation Ceremony' by the students and teachers of the department.

Abstract of the Speaker 1, Dr. Chaitali Bhattacharjee is given below :

Naturally occurring chromium metals are Cr(0), Cr(III) and Cr (VI). Chromium is a trace metal and must be obtained from diet, deficiency of which can cause diabetes. Chromium is highly valued in industries such as steel making, welding, wood treatment, leather tanning etc. Hexavalent Cr is extremely carcinogenic on inhalation and on exposure to environment. It may also affect respiratory tract, lung, skin etc. Discharge of this toxic Cr(VI) into environment mostly arises from industries (effluents). Microbe mediated mitigation from contaminated soil through biosorption, bioaccumulation, bioleaching, biotransformation etc.

Abstract of the Speaker 2, Charu Chand Hansda is given below :

In our modern life we cannot remain unaffected by our natural environment but for our betterment and long life we can easily follow some things, synthetic methods, procedures which makes sustainable for everything. This is the importance of sustainability in day to day life.

- Things used everyday
- Life style and environment
- Synthesis from natural sources
- Artificial Synthesis
- Synthesis using sustainable methods (Green Synthesis)
- Key of sustainability (Self awareness)
